Previously packaged media is partitioned into blocks.
In this case, the entire segment represents 1 block.

CMMF Bitstreams/Objects are stored/cached and/or transmitted within the network. Once streaming clients retrieve at least k coded symbols from any combination of existing CMMF bitstreams/objects, they can decode to retrieve the original HLS or MPEG-DASH segment.