Dear Dr. Krause:

I am pleased to put forward my husband Gino Masini as candidate for the position of RAN Chief Cook, for which elections will be held at RAN #90-e. He will represent Masini Fine Dining AB.

I can attest to my husband's outstanding capability as chef. Gino has a strong background in the preparation of many typical dishes from Tuscany, from where his family originates. On top of that, thanks to our 20+ years together, he has also been exposed to the influences of Northern Italian cuisine, and he is very proficient at preparing typical dishes from the North.

Gino is also very well versed with barbecue, as can be confirmed by friends and colleagues that have visited us throughout the years.

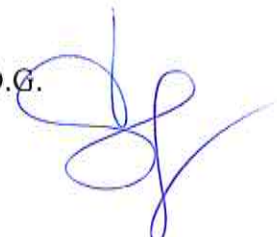

When Gino is in a good mood (which I'm afraid doesn't happen very often lately, due to his work with 3GPP) he is also known to prepare a few dishes from the French tradition, with fully satisfactory results.

Although I believe I may be an even better cook than he is, I fully support him as a candidate and I am confident he will do well if elected.

I am aware Gino has been fully trained on matters of anti-trust and IPR, and he may disclose his ways of cooking as needed in true "open standards" spirit. None the less, I assume he will be allowed to keep some of his tricks as "implementation-dependent".

Sincerely,

D.G.
