Kyongju

Kyongju is located southeast part of Korean peninsula and one of the Korea's most important cultural and historical sites. The city was the capital of Shilla Dynasty (B.C. 57 - A.D. 938), a kingdom that had begun about 2,000 years ago and united the Korean peninsula under one government for the first time in the 7th century. As such, the city itself is a vast outdoor processing no fewer than 270 important national treasures. There is no better museum place to go to get a close look at Korean ancient history as well as some of the country's most outstanding Buddhist temples and heritages. You can find a lot of relics around downtown. Korean people always want to visit here. Temperature in October is 16°C ~ 18°C. The population is about 260,000.
